Water is essential for good health, but watering by hand can be difficult. You must move sprinklers, drag hoses between gardens, or set aside some space to water each plant. Our ingenious watering system eliminates the need for watering. They're the simplest way to provide plants with the moisture they require for the best harvest and most beautiful blooms.

A micro-irrigation design of the area is prepared based on the plants, garden layout, and other horticultural considerations, and it highlights the components to be used. It is important to make the system completely automatic, with minimal water waste, and to aid in plant growth throughout the year. All products used in the irrigation system meet the highest quality standards recognised worldwide.

Vertical Gardens

A vertical garden is a plant-covered wall that contains a growing medium, such as soil. Vertical gardens can also be referred to as living walls or green walls. Green walls are available in a variety of sizes and can be installed indoors or outdoors, freestanding or attached to an existing wall. The recent trend of vertical gardening is becoming more popular as gardeners channel their creativity to new heights. Vertical garden ideas today are about showcasing the textures, colours, and vibrancy of plants in exciting, new ways, as opposed to strict garden designs. In vertical gardens, various types of modular panels can be used along with geotextile fabrics, growing media, irrigation systems, and plants.

Horticultural Consultancy

Horticulture is the science of growing and managing ornamental and native plants, as well as plant systems, and we specialise in understanding all aspects of both natural and ornamental landscapes. Our problem-solving skills enable us to assess landscape conditions and pinpoint the source of poor appearance and performance. We also collaborate with designers to assess existing conditions prior to planting and make recommendations to ensure the success of future landscapes. A disease infection, pest infestation, irrigation deficiency, improper installation, poor plant selection, soil toxicities and deficiencies, or drainage impairment may be identified as the source of a performance problem through an assessment of signs and symptoms present on individual plants or throughout a landscape planting.
